Abstract

The present study entitled : “ The interpretive . sentence in the Glorious Qur’an : Asyntactic semantic study “ is based up on two basic concepts. The first is concerned with investigating the literature review regarding the interpretive sentence as far as linguistics and term . are concerned, through the syntactic constraints set by syntactic theorization. Then , the study pnoceeds . to investigate the positions of these sentences in the Gloribns Qur’an – All His is the major concern of the first chapter of the study .

As for the second concept, which is tackled in the second chepter , it is confined to the functionally common interpretive sentence . A thorough and broad account of in ter pretation interpretive sentence . A thorough and broad account of inter pretation as a syntactic function is given There fore, all the related topic are dealt with altogether in one chapter, which comprises five subsechons olnfact , five iypes of interpret ive sentence are stndied concentrating largely on our point of view where inter pretation and intwpretive sentences are functionally related .

The study evds with the conclusion which includes the most out standing findings .
